

FREE HEALTH LECTURE

Advances in treating severe asthma

Nearly 19 million U.S. adults struggle with asthma. For some, the condition is a minor nuisance. For others, asthma is a major problem that interferes with daily activities and can lead to a life-threatening attack. Luckily, many effective treatments are available.

Come hear a board-certified pulmonologist describe new approaches to treating severe asthma, with a special focus on an innovative procedure called Bronchial Thermoplasty – the first non-drug therapy for adults that provides significant improvement in asthma-related quality of life.

Speaker Thomas M. Wilcox, DO, of Boulder Valley Pulmonology

When Wednesday, April 29, from 7 to 8 p.m.

Where YMCA of Boulder Valley, 2800 Dagny Way, Lafayette

Reservations required:

bchlectures.org/asthma • 303-441-0580

