

FREE LECTURE IN HONOR OF STROKE
AWARENESS MONTH

Recognizing & Treating Stroke

Did you know that strokes can—and do—occur at any age? In fact, nearly one-quarter of the nearly 800,000 Americans who suffer a stroke each year are under the age of 65 and about 10% are teens or young adults.

Strokes often lead to serious, life-changing complications or death. Unfortunately, few of us know the warning signs. To help protect yourself and your loved ones, learn the symptoms of an impending stroke. Then learn about the newest treatment options for helping stroke victims.

Speaker Lauren Middleton-Hoang, DO, of Associated Neurologists

When Tuesday, May 12, from 7 to 8 p.m.

Where The Dairy Center for the Arts, 2590 Walnut St., Boulder (Main entrance is located on 26th Street. Parking lot entrance is on Walnut Street.)

Reservations required:

bchlectures.org/stroke • 303-441-0580

Free blood pressure screening

Starting 30 minutes before the lecture (first-come, first-served).